the City is not obligated to fund the project and that there are grants available. Council agreed by consensus to have Parks Committee meet on January 12.

Unfinished Business

a. Community Room Discussion—Cole said he directed Jorgensen to move the council chambers to its current location in October for a three-month trial period. Those three months are up and he likes the space. Cole proposes walling off the former break room area downstairs for a records area and having the rest of the area used for Columbia Economic Team. Jorgensen said the Rainier Chamber of Commerce could use it as a physical location. The area behind the council dais could be walled off and used for storage. Langner said people have been telling him they like the new council chambers, but the audio quality could be improved. Jorgensen said he could obtain more PA speakers and knows where he wants to put them in the room. duPlessis said he'd like to see an emergency exit added. Council agreed by consensus to have staff move forward with those improvements.

b. Wastewater Plant MAO—Public Works Director Russ Reigel said manholes in town are scheduled to be lined the following week, with flow monitoring set for mid-December.

Reigel said the centrifuge at the wastewater plant is running again. The Christmas tree will be put up in the A Street Plaza the next morning. Jorgensen said he and some members of council attended a Government Ethics Commission training on public meeting laws, he renewed his notary commission, made arrangements for the City/County Dinner, assisted in the audit and began advertising vacant positions on the Library Board.
